Ref: CAM06

later known as SOUTH BERMONDSEY, ST BARTHOLOMEW

Status	demolished
Borough	Southwark
Present parish	BERMONDSEY, ST KATHARINE & ST BARTHOLOMEW
Built	1887
Build architect	W & E Tapnell Allen
Further information	A large church, seating 700. Plan from 1912 on www.churchplansonline.org "One of the churches promoted by Richard Foster. The foundation stone was laid on 15 June 1886, and the church consecrated on 25 June 1887. Work was done in 1911 by G H Fellowes Prynne. Early English style, of brick - red outside, and yellow and red within. It has a nave and aisles of four bays, and a short west bay; a lofty chancel with organ in the base of an unbuilt tower on the north, and a chapel on the south ... There are four windows by Heaton, Butler and Bayne in the north aisle; and one by G Cooper Abbs in the chapel." (from 'Parish Churches of London', Basil F L Clarke, Batsford, 1966) The parish was renamed in 1978 as South Bermondsey, St Bartholomew and the church last known to be in use in 1982. It was declared redundant 1993 and demolished 1994; the contents mainly went to St Catherine [Hatcham? Or was Bermondsey, St Katharine meant?]. There was a single bell (fate unknown). The site was leased c.1995 to Southwark & London Diocesan Housing Association.
